

COCO DE MER NUT SCULPTURAL BOX BY ANTONY REDMILE, LONDON

$14,000

This is a rare and magnificent object fashioned from a rare coco de mer nut and Ostrich egg by Antony Redmile. The box is secured to a wooden base with a silvered stand, holding both sides of the coconut. The coconut is a rich dark chocolate brown and appears to be warmly polished. The top of the box is silvered and adorned with beautiful malachite specimens. 2 small cast resin boar's teeth set with malachite are present on either side of the box, much like handles. Decorative silvered fittings hold ostrich eggs that serve as the lids to the box. Finally, a silvered fitting holds an oval malachite finial which serves as the handle. This would be stunning in any environment and would add sophistication to any interior! A rare chance to own a unique object by one of the true originals of the modern movement.

1970s

Dimensions

Height:

18"H

Width:

16"W

Depth: 8"D

Materials

Coco de Mer

Nut,

Malachite,

Resin, Silver

Plate